

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to get into what is clearly campaign broadcasting with the airing of the anti-Kerry documentary "Stolen Honor" is a clear example of the madness of media consolidation.

Sinclair gets the use of public airwaves free. It is therefore obligated to serve the public interest. Sinclair's action shows why we need to strengthen media ownership rules. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a "returned postcard". Thank you.

Dean Brown